COUNSELING CENTER SURVEY AND DIRECTORY
1984
Dear Colleague:

The results of the recent survey of counseling center directors sponsored by the Urban Counseling Center Task Force are enclosed. Highlights of the survey are listed followed by a summary of the data broken down by urban and non-urban, and large and small institutions. A directory of participating institutions is also provided.

I hope that you find the data and the directory useful, and that you can find the time to return the attached evaluation sheet.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

Robert P. Gallagher, Director
University Counseling and Student Development Center

PS: Many of you also contributed names to the 1984 Speakers Resource Directory prepared for ACPA. If you would like a copy please send a check for $3.00 to cover the printing and mailing cost. You can indicate your request on the evaluation sheet.
SURVEY HIGHLIGHTS
N = 249

Considering only the total data (combined urban and non-urban) of the responding centers it was noted that:

--8% charge a fee for counseling sessions - (up 2% from last year). Median fee is $10.50 per session. Of the 21 centers that charge fees, 13 receive third party payments. (Items 1, 2, and 3)

--27% receive support from a mandatory student fee. This represents a 6% increase over last year. (Item 4)

--For the second year in a row in spite of tightening budgets, more centers showed gains (21%, 13% and 5%) in the hiring of professional staff, interns, and graduate assistants than losses (11%, 4%, and 1%). Clerical gains and losses were about the same. (Items 7 and 8)

--36% have on-line computers, and 47% microcomputers; an increase of 11% and 27% respectively over last year. (Item 9)

--62% state they are the only provider of mental health services on campus. 33% are the primary providers. (Items 11 and 12)

--88% are administratively separate from Student Health, but most (68%) report excellent relationships with health services and only 1% report an antagonistic relationship. (Items 13 and 14)

--19% have psychiatric consultants on staff, 31% have access through the Health Center, and 17% have no access to psychiatrists. (Item 16)

--62% report that Health Center physicians other than psychiatrists prescribe medication for center clients on counselor's request. (Item 19)

--10% report they have experienced pressure in the past 5 years to have counseling placed under medical supervision. Pressure in most cases was resisted. (Item 20)
--51% report the primary place for career counseling on campus is in the counseling center; 26% in placement, and 23% shared equally. (Item 23)

--61% have career information libraries. (Item 40)

--Only 10% of centers report that they do not accept mandatory counseling referrals. There are many qualifications to this, however, and varied conditions under which information will be provided to the referring source. (See item 23 for elaboration)

--53% report an increase in severely disturbed students on campus. (Item 24)

--40% report an increase in anorexia cases, and 67% an increase in bulimia cases. Students with anorexia are about twice as likely as bulimic students to be referred outside the center. Directors are also about twice as optimistic about the treatment outcomes for bulimics than they are for anorectics. (Items 25 to 30)

--35% of directors provide no feedback to referring source on whether a student comes to center or is making progress. Most, however, would give some feedback with student's permission. (Item 31)

--42% feel college officials would like more information on students in counseling than can be ethically provided. (Item 32)

--45% have a systematized format for evaluating staff. (Item 33)

--101 Centers (43%) have a formal intake system. (Item 34)

--68 Centers (27%) have a serious waiting list problem. It is interesting to note that of these 68, 42 (62%) also have a formal intake system. It raises the question of whether the intake system was created to ease the waiting list problem, or whether the intake system is contributing to the problem. (Item 35)

--5% of Centers keep no case records; 22% report counselors keep own records; 18% keep session-by-session notes only; 29% keep case summaries only; and 29% keep both session by session and case summaries. (Item 36)

--10% report their Center's internship training program have APA accreditation; 3% are in process, and 22% are considering accreditation. (Item 37)
--32% of centers are accredited by IACS. Of the remainder, 9% are in process, 27% are interested, and 48% might consider at a later time. (Items 38 and 39)

--43% take specific initiatives to relieve staff burnout. (Initiatives are listed.) (Item 41)

--5 Centers had suits against them in the past year. Two were filed by center staff members. Of the two suits involving students one stemmed from the involuntary removal of a student from school for psychological reasons and the other was for not providing adequate precautions for a student who committed suicide. (Item 42)

--22 Centers had their case records subpoenaed at least once last year, 16 cases were reported in 1984, and 10 in 1982, so the trend is upward. Of those who described the nature of the subpoenas, a little less than half did not have to comply. (See item 43 for description.)

--44 directors (17%) have had to confront staff members about unethical practices in the past year; 53 (24%) confrontations were held over the past 3 years. (Item 44)

--6 directors fired counselors in the past year (9 in the past 3 years) for unethical practices. (Item 45)

--A Tarasoff type question elicited varied comments from directors. (See item 46 for discussion.)

--65 Centers (28%) gave Tarasoff type warnings in the past year. 86 Centers (40%) gave such warnings over the past 3 years. (Item 47)

--29% of directors report there are legal precedents in their state for giving a Tarasoff type warning; 18% said no precedents exist; and 53% were uncertain. (Item 48)

--32% have written policies describing circumstances under which a counselor might need to break a client's confidence. (Item 49)

--22% reported students have sought counseling at their center in past year because of sexual harassment by another therapist; and 67% because of such harassment by a faculty member or supervisor. (Item 50)

--Staff members from 3 centers gave testimony when a charge of sexual harassment was brought against another therapist. Staff from 10 Centers gave testimony for similar charges against a faculty member or supervisor. (Item 51)
On the following survey summary, please note that where significant differences occur between urban and non-urban, and large and small centers, the data is asterisked.

Please also note that item 52 lists fund raising activities, item 53 lists innovative ways of supplementing travel budgets, item 54 lists staff development programs, and item 55 lists ethical/legal issues of concern to directors.

   e. Other: Of the 84 Centers that checked other, 35 gave no information without student's permission, 15 say policy varies depending on circumstances; 12 agree to see student for mandatory session with additional sessions being voluntary; 8 accept referrals but use session to decide nature of counseling and leave it up to student to decide whether to continue; 7 prefer to use a term such as "recommended" rather than "voluntary"; 4 have never had a mandatory referral, and 2 are working on a policy.

When respondents were asked what advantages or disadvantages of accepting referrals for mandatory counseling about 38% listed advantages, 43% listed disadvantages, and the remainder saw potentially positive outcomes under certain circumstances such as giving the student the option of continuing counseling after referral is made. Some examples of responses follow:

Advantages
- creates and improves public relations by
- alerting students to counseling resources
- provides helpful consultation to administration
- a constructive solution to a difficult problem
- some students chose to continue
- advantageous for substance abuse and eating disorder cases
- many successful interventions began with such a referral

Disadvantages
- difficult dealing with unmotivated clients
- confusion of roles--counseling center serve as agent of administration
- counseling may be perceived as form of discipline
- rarely does client return after first visit
- client fears about confidentiality

Comments on Subpoenaes

Compliance Necessary

a. Suit against landlord by former client,

b. Former client allegedly murdered husband in self defense. Counselor subpoenaed to testify

c. Federal court order initiated by Secret Service in response to a death threat on President

d. Case records withheld until client signed a release

e. Coroner requested records after client's suicide.

f. Client, a university employee, filed grievance against department.

g. Security check by FBI. Student signed release form

h. Office deposition given to both attorneys in trial involving client. No material presented during the trial.

i. Records subpoenaed in both civil and criminal suits involving former clients

j. Paternity suit involving two clients--mother & father

k. Professional behavior of an intern was in question

Provided only demographic info, officially "on file"

Compliance Not Necessary

a. Child custody dispute

b. Accident suit - defense looking for pre-existing problems

c. Accident case - clients' problems held to be the cause

d. Alleged rape trial. Records subpoenaed to determine victim's sexual history. Judge did not permit records to be turned over but asked some questions in his chambers

e. Attempt to subpoena records. Lawyer was told that court order is necessary. Court order never came.

f. Threatened with subpoena. Resolved without legal action.

g. Custody battle. Husband and juvenile court requested records on children. They were told both parents' signatures were needed. No follow-up by courts so far.

h. In 3 cases compliance in line with policy of consultation with counsel. In each case the counselor did not have to appear.

Other Comments

While 57 respondents checked "other" 76 wrote in comments. Of these 75% stressed the importance of obtaining more information and evaluating carefully prior to performing any action. The recommendations included:

- Consulting with colleagues before any action is taken
- Determining whether the threat is literal or figurative
- Trying to find out more about why he/she would do it, and the client's plans for how it would be done
- Continuing to counsel while obtaining more data and while making plans for intervention

About 25% of the suggestions involved taking direct and immediate action such as:

- informing the vice president of student affairs
- warning departmental chairperson or faculty member
- informing student that warning would be given
- calling ombudsman if the faculty treatment seemed actually outrageous

Note: This question, while difficult to respond to because of the limited information provided, was included because of a case in Pennsylvania where a psychiatrist after hearing almost the exact words of those given in the example wrote a letter of warning to a director of personnel. The client sued claiming a breach of confidentiality and won. There is no precedent for a Tarasoff finding in Pennsylvania, and I assume in a number of other states.

55. A listing of ethical/legal issues that directors think are important for counseling center staffs to consider. This data has roughly been categorized into three areas: confidentiality issues, counseling issues, and professional or other issues.

A. Confidentiality Issues
1. "Duty to Warn" still a very complicated issue.
2. Breach of confidentiality when potential for danger is "so-so."
3. Administration pressing for information on when they have knowledge that a potentially difficult or dangerous student is being seen.
4. What should be included in central files both from legal and ethical viewpoints?
5. Should confidential client data be stored in main computer?
6. Procedures to follow when it seems necessary to breach a student's confidence.
7. When a staff member who maintained own case records changes jobs who will assume responsibility for these files? How will the same level of confidentiality be guaranteed?
8. How should clients be advised to answer question on job applications about whether they have ever seen a counselor or therapist?
9. How should clients be advised to answer question on job applications about whether they have ever seen a counselor or therapist?
10. The legality of breaking "confidentiality" based on "the needs of the community."
11. Constant attention to changing "public information" law which, while well intended, are often so broad as to include confidential client information.
12. Legal status of parental requests for information on underage students.
13. When can a parent be notified about a student's deteriorating condition (possibly suicidal)?
14. Should client's permission be sought before discussing their case in a consulting or supervisory session?
15. Speaking about a client in presence of clerical staff or student employers raises clear ethical questions.
16. Concerned about graduate students counseling other students.
17. Interns playing tapes in supervisory groups back in their academic department. Who assumes responsibility for protecting confidentiality?
18. Should confidentiality exist between counseling service and medical staff in Student Health Center?
19. Clarification of legal/ethical question in cases when counseling a couple. Where one spouse (or the court) asks you to testify on his/her behalf.
20. Problems around waiting rooms that serve multiple purposes--counseling, placement, learning skills, etc.

B. Counseling Issues
1. Use of "fad" approach to popular illnesses (i.e. anorexia) without sufficient research and/or medical support.
2. What are the risks associated with "non-traditional" therapies?
3. The "ethics" of computer-assisted counseling and testing.
4. Nonethical use of placement tests.
5. Follow-up and ethicalness of contact with clients outside of therapy.
6. Questions about when supportive touching or embracing of client becomes inappropriate and unethical.
7. Continuation of counseling despite lack of client progress.
8. Reasons for not accepting a student for counseling; is it ethical to leave this up to the arbitrary choice of the therapist?
9. When counseling services are provided to students, does every student have the right to counseling, i.e., can they be "shunted" off because the prognosis for improvement is not good.
10. Is it ethical to offer long-term therapy to certain students (those that are fun to work with) while telling others that they should seek long-term help elsewhere?
11. What are the dangers in allowing an intern to see a client in the center after hours (no supervisor present)?
12. How do we protect our clients from sexual exploitation by our staff or by interns in the center?
14. Assignment of cases to trainees that may be beyond their level of competence.

C. Professional (or Other) Issues
1. Counselor's role in situations involving suspected child abuse.
2. Reproducing copyrighted materials (tests/inventories) in the center.
3. Serving as psychological consultant to committees such as "Academic Review and Promotion" where both faculty members or their students may be clients.
4. Who is the client for a counseling center director? the University? Student? Counselors?, etc.
5. Need to re-examine organizational lines for counseling services as new laws and ethical concerns may indicate a need for greater autonomy from certain administrative offices.
6. Question of need for ongoing supervision of staff.
7. Conflict of interest cases--private treatment of university students who are not eligible for university counseling services.
8. What to do if one has an academic appointment and hears about problematic behavior on the part of a colleague?
9. When we hear through a client of the unprofessional behavior of another therapist we are encouraged to talk with the therapist about it and to consider informing the state psychological association. This is rarely done in practice. What are the ethical and legal issues involved?
10. If there is legal action taken against an intern whose liability insurance takes responsibility--the counseling center's supervisor or the academic department's supervisor?
11. Hiring an intern or practicum student who had previously been a client.
12. Extent of legal accountability of staff members hired long before such issues were of concern and who either do not have formal training background in counseling or psychology and would not merit criteria for licensing.
13. How ethical is it for a counselor who has "found" religion in his/her own life to attempt to encourage a similar course of action for clients?
14. Is the fact that a counselor does not obtain licensing a just cause for dismissal if this is a job-expectation (even though state licensing laws may not demand this for individuals employed within institutions)?
15. When licensing is a center expectation, which is a reasonable time frame to expect that this expectation will be met?
16. Is malpractice insurance necessary when working within a university setting?
17. Separating private practice activities from university functions.
18. How are waiting list priorities established?
19. What is our responsibility for "treatment" student receives from a "peer counselor" trained by our staff?
20. What to do when graduating interns want to maintain their long-term counseling relationship with clients in their own private practice?
21. What is an ethically appropriate way to handle staff members who abuse professional action and do not carry fair share of workload.
22. Is it ethical for an intern's supervisor to also serve as the intern's therapist?

23. What is "due process" when a student is being involuntarily removed from school for psychological reasons?

24. Does university have legal responsibility for clients seen in Counseling Center who are not enrolled in the University? Alumni? Faculty? Staff? etc.

25. Questions around the provision of services to students who have been previously diagnosed as having a learning disability. Judgements are being made in a very poorly defined area with people who may be very heavily invested in the concept of disability.
